

REVIEW

This study used immersion in ice water to cool the feet. Researchers conducting the study believed that continuously cooling the feet to very low temperatures was the key to their promising results. They noted further research was needed, but felt the conclusions showed "considerable promise as a technique for preventing acute laminitis."

Kerrits New Breathe Tight

The latest member of Kerrits performance tights and breeches collection is its Breathe Tight. A full-seat tight that utilizes their new, exclusive GripStretch™ suede panels through the seat of the inner leg that continue to wrap around the knee for added stability and joint support.

The core fabric of the Kerrits Breathe Tight, originally constructed for mountaineering, is thermo-regulating, lightweight, snag resistant and extremely durable. It provides compression that has both anti-fatigue and slimming effects. Four-way stretch guarantees a perfect fit that moves with you. This tight has a side pocket that won't allow its contents to interfere with your ride, while being easily accessible while in the saddle.
